AFFAIRS OF THE THEATRE. 'ARIOUS PHASES OF THE "CYRANO DE DEEGERAC" RIVALRY.

tehard Carle's Burlesque Treats Augustin paly and Ada Rehan Very Impolitely— Richard Mansfield's Payment of Boyalty— A Production Imponding in Third Avenue.

The first burlesque of "Cyrano de Ber-PIRC" is at Kuster & Bial's Theatre. Most the fun is nimed at Augustin Daly and Ada ban, not in finely barbed shafts of wit from a ow, but in big and heavy balls from a cannon. (r. Daly figures as Augustin Dooley, a stealer ad mangler of Rostand's melodrama, in order make it rield a star rôle for Miss Rehan. are called Romana Rechan, while there is a helpard Manifeld on hand to declare that has Reban is "one of the best old women on be stace." The attack is less jovial than viions, especially when Josephine Hall sings the opular ballad, "Roxiana Dooley," with new erest imparting unpleasant significance to he union of names. However, this song, as gen spiritedly by Miss Hall and a chorus, is he most entertaining thing in the skit. She s not able to get sufficiently away from her wa mannerisms to imitate those of Miss tehan, else she might do very well with her hare of the crude travesty. The part of Cyand is taken by Dick Bernard, a brother of am Bernard, and very much like him in voice ad method as a German dialect comedian. sing equally energetic, though scarcely so actuous. The acenes selected to maltreat re the introduction of the big-nosed hero at he theatre, his meeting of the heroine at the he theatre, his meeting of the heroine at the alreadop, and his fooling of her at the balcey. The twenty-minute piece is the work thichard Carle, who is clever in comic details sit not in strong effects. He has put a pleny of verbal hits into "Sir Andy de Bootjack," a he calls this buriesque, but does not once trike out hard.

Albert M. Palmer writes to THE SUN that, a Richard Mansfield's manager, he has aleady sent $1.700 to Edmond Rostand as royly on "Cyrano de Bergerac," and that he exsets to increase the sum to about $7,000 duras the term of the drama at the Garden Theare. Mr. Palmer's word is not to be quesused por the genuineness of the letter in thich Mr. Rostand declares that all others han Mr. Mansfield who produce the play in his country are secondrels morally, if not leally. But the author's denial that he ever poke of America as a land of thieves, and said at as a matter of course we would rob him this unprotected property, need not be so sadily accepted as true. However, his belief Mr. Mansfield's probity must be sincere. ince it is supported by not less than $7,000, this the printed play may be bought now for seen cents at the stores, with freedom to act to the stage. It would be interesting to tow stage, it would be interesting to the stage. It would be interesting to the stage, it would be interesting to the stage, it would be interesting to the stage and the more so as several of his boildly arised exteriments had recently proved business failures. After Coquelin's triumph in London with it in French, Irving screwed his tourge up to the point of sticking the great use on his own face. Then came the news hat the copyright law had been neglected so her as America was concerned, though obsered as to Great Britain, and that Mansfield had determined to take advantage of the situation, with Rostand's permission if he could cit it, and without it if he couldn't. The loss olving is severe, as he has been waiting for successful play with which to make another american visit. Should not and does not a portion of the royalty which Mansfield voluntarily pays to Rostand go to Irving? Meanshile Augustin Daly goes right along, regardises of onslaughts by newspaper critics for his urtailment and alteration, and of denunciating hys forestand, Coquelin and Mansfield for aking up the plees without authority. Daly has already played it in Philadelphis, Ba'timore and Washington, and will next week get to Brooklyn with it on his way to Boston, thus overing much territory absed, of Mansfield, and aunouncing that he will use nothing else iming Miss Reham's tour. No doubt Mansfield will have the first production of the discuss work by a cut-rate stock company at the Taird Avenue Theatre, with Bore Davidson in the Coquelin part, while Boston will have to reach Chicago at other Western cities in advance of Daly. It is understool that a secre of mannagers of resident companies are ready to follow suit in case audiences take kindly to these ince it is supported by not less than $7,000. thile the printed play may be bought now for

TOTHE EDITOR OF THE SUN-Sir: There seems to reason why Ada Rehan should, as your critic has suggested, wear the nose of Cyrano de Bergrac in the Daly version of the play merely betause Rozane has been made its leading character. The best speeches may be given to that rôle, and the interest of the drama may be made to centre in her rather than in its hero. but the nose is incidental, not essential, and the unities of Daly's performance do not require that she should unnecessarily disfigure berself. Indeed, the nose in its present propertions need not long continue a feature in tene" survives on our stage, it will be able to to so in spite of the grotesque disfigurement two years ago, was a member of kickard stansfeld's company. Frank M. Holahan is the son of Maurice F. Holahan, President of the Board of Public Improvements in this city, and, like his father, is appearing on the Board of Public Improvements in this city, and, like his father, is well known in Tammany Hall. He is a lawyer, with offices in the New York Life building. Six weeks ago he went to Greensboro, and his friends say that the late announcement here of his marriage is only due to a recent decision on the part of the young couple to make this city were indeed, the most noticeable points of that

If the strain the strain the strain the possible to get rid of the nose, which not only hampers the actor, but restrains the strains the strains of his face as well as damaging his deliver. There seems no reason why the nose of Oyano, historic as it is, should be retained, Arcounts of that famous organ report that it was not only large, but disfigured by the scars his adversaries cut and sinabed there. These were, indeed, the most noticeable points of that rose. But none of the actors have attempted to reproduce those features of it. They have smilled themselves with showing its size, and his scars are missing. After a while the large nose is certain to go, and a milder exaggeration of the organ will serve future actors if Oyrano becomes a part in the repertoire of the actors of the future. One movement likely to produce that effect is the announcement that he piece is to be given by the stock companies throughout the country. Audiences that ridiculed Tribly's toes will certainly find soling, but amusement in Cyrano's nose, especially if the productions lack the graces of suborateness and spectacle.

It is doubtful if "Hamlet" would ever have surrived such a nose as that which Mr. Mansfeld, following Coquelin's example, puts on. The tendency of art is always to refine merely supposed attributes and diminish their importance as much as possible. For that reason is seen which a company of the comp populace appreciated her art so much that the audience one night represented £30. That was the worst that was reached. But the engagement was a complete failure. One of the first things she said on her return to this country was that she would under no circumstances ever again appear in Chicago.

Jean de Beszke sang last in Chicago two years ago, during the disastrous engagement that helped to wind up the old corporation that preceded the Maurice Grau opera company. He was made the subject of many speers from the press on account of the Nordica row, which had happened during the preceding season. Mme. Nordica and her press agent prepared a warm reception for him. More painful was the fact that the houses were empty throughout the whole engagement. One performance of "Les Huguenots," with the entire strength of the company, almost reached the famous Duse level. Finally the artists of the company had to make up a purse to carry the season through, Never in the history of operatic enterprise had a greater disaster been known.

Nothing was said by Jean de Reszke after his return. He merely bided his time. When the Chicago engagements were amounced the tenor's name was mentioned along with other singers. So was Mme. Caivé's. But when the time approached for him to go to Chicago, M. de Reszke positively declined to do it. When the cablegram reached this country first it was thought that he had changed his mind and might not come here at all. CRUIKSHANK DEFENCE OPENS.

Testimony That He Was Not at Mrs. Lowe's on the Night of June 11, 1896.

The trial of Mrs. Maud Cruikshank's suit for absolute divorce from Dr. William J. Cruikshank was continued before Supreme Court Justice Johnson in Brooklyn yesterday. The defendant makes a counter claim against his wife and names Lawyer Frankenberg as the co-respondent. Charles J. Patterson, counsel for Dr. Cruikshank, opened for the delence. He characterized the proceedings as a conspiracy between Police Sergeant Foster, the father of the plaintiff, and other relatives, to ruin the reputation of Dr. Cruikshank. He said it was true that Dr. Cruikshank had paid frequent visits to the house of Mrs. Martha Dorlon Lowe, at 18 Berkeley place, but that the visits were necessary, as Mrs. Lowe was one of the doctor's patients. Dr. Cruikshank was a successful physician, he said, and had a high reputation. Mrs. Lowe, who was named as co-respondent. lived alone with her two boys and supported them by giving music lessons. In referring to Police Sergeant Foster, Mr. Patterson characterized him as a "scoundrel" and a reprobate. He referred to the testimony given against Dr. Cruikshank as a "dastardly plot hatched by the Foster crew and by Frankenberg." The Sergeant, he said, "filled himself with drink and plotted the ruin of Dr. Cruik-hank and Mrs. Lowe."
Mr. Patterson then referred to the feeling that existed between Lawrer Frankenberg and Mrs. Cruikshank. He said that Frankenberg had given Mrs. Cruikshank whiskey and gin cocktails and had taught her to smoke cigarettes.

gin cocktails and had taught her to smoke cigarettes.

Edward B. Walton, an insurance adjuster, was the first witness called by the defence, the said his wife was taken ill on the night of June 11, 1836, and that Dr. Cruikshank attended her and was at her bedside from 10:30 o'clock until 3 o'clock the following morning. Dr. Cruikshank, the witness said, told him that he had an engagement with Mrs. Lowe, and as he could not leave asked the witness to take some tablets to Mrs. Lowe. The witness did so. The testimony in this regard was in striking contrast to that given by the plaintiff's witnesses, who allege that they saw Dr. Cruikshank in Mrs. Lowe's room from 10:30 o'clock on the night of June 11 until 4 o'clock the following morning.

Mrs. walton testified that she was very ill on June 11, 1886, and that Dr. Cruikshank attended her until after 3 o'clock the following morning.

Charlotte Garland a nurse, who sitended tended her until after 3 o'clock the following morning.

Charlotte Garland, a nurse, who attended Mrs. Walton, testified to the fliness and to Dr. Cruikshank's visits. Herbert Griffiths, the coachman for Dr. Cruikshank, testified that he had driven Dr. Cruikshank to Mrs. Walton's house on the night of June 11, 185%, and at 3 o'clock in the morning, when Dr. Cruikshank's house was on fire, had gone to the Walton house to get the doctor, and was informed by Mr. Walton that Dr. Cruikshank had just gone to Mrs. Lowe's house, the rroseeded to Mrs. Lowe's house, where Dr. Cruikshank opened the door immediately when he rang the bell.

The witness was asked if Sergeant Foster or his son-in-law Burns ever visited Dr., Cruikshank's house late at night.

"What time of the night was Mrs. Crulk-shank in the habit of returning home?" asked Mr. Patterson. Mr. Davis objected to the question. The case will be continued to-day.

TAMMANY LAWYER WEDS ACTRESS.

McCaull Kept Secret Since Sept. 28. An announcement in the morning papers yesterday made public the marriage of Winifred Lavinia McCaull and Frank M. Hojahan, which occurred on Sept. 28 at the home of the bride's other in Greensboro, N. C. The bride is the daughter of Col. John A. McCaull, who died eight years ago. He was a Confederate cavalry leader, who later organized the McCaull Opera Company. His daughter is 22 years old, and at the time of her engagement to Mr. Holahan, two years ago, was a member of Richard Mans-

DIED OF HYDROPHOBIA

NINE-TEAR-OLD BOY A VICTIM TO THE DREAD DISEASE.

Stray Dog Which Was Caught in Bay Side by the Boy's Father Inflicts the Fatal Wound-Four Men and Three Other Boys Bitten-A Score of Doge Also Bitten. Bay Sing, L. L. Oct. 19 .- Frederick Janke, the 9-year-old son of Charles Janke, a butcher, who lives in Bell avenue near the depot, died to-night in the Flushing Hospital from what the physicians define to be a clear case of hydrophobia. The dog whose bite is supposed to have caused the death of the boy is known to have bitten a number of other persons and also a number of dogs. There is a great amount of alarm among the friends of the bitten persons and the dogs that suffered are being subjected to a special watch.

The dog which bit young Janke was one of a litter which formerly belonged to Vincent Newman, a farmer. Newman gave it to a Polish farmer who lives near his place. On the afternoon of Sept. 16 the dog ran down the main street in Bay Side dragging a chain behind him. William Durkin, who minds the sods fountain in Dr. G. B. Story's drug store in Bay Side, saw the dog coming, and, alarmed by something strange in its appearance, he jumped over a fence and got out of its way. The dog ran through the main streets of the town snapping at everybody who got in its way.

Charles Janke, the father of the dead boy. eaught the dog and tied it to a tree in front of his house. Then he went into the house to eat his supper. While he was inside his son tried to pet the dog. The animal sprang at him and bit him in the upper lip. The animal then broke its fastenings and again ran away. Janke heard his boy's cries and upon learning their cause started out to kill the dog, accompanied by a number of men armed with shotguns. The chase continued until about 9 o'clock that night, when the dog was discovered in an orchard. It was driven out to the main street, where Policeman McCarthy killed it.

The wounds of the boy and those of a farmer named Nicholas Beck, who was bitten in the thrumb and thigh, were dressed that night by Dr. Story. The Janke boy went to school on the following day and his wounds soon healed. Last Monday morning he began to feel dizzy and complained to his mother. That night he went out yesterday, but at periods during the day was attacked again with spasms.

Dr. Story was called in again and he immediately suspected that the boy had hydrophobia. The boy was rational most of the time. He called continually for water. Whenever water was offered to him he cried. There's a lump in my throat, I cannot drink it. Take it away." When water was offered to him last night he went into convulsions. He snapped his teeth and uttered sounds resembling the bark of a dog. Injections of morphine did not quiet him.

bark of a dog. Injections of morphine did not quiet him.

Early this morning he became rational again and conversed with his father and the physician. Then came a repetition of the convulsions, during which he frothed at the mouth and uttered the barking sounds. Dr. Laurence of Flushing was called in consultation with Dr. Story. Both physicians agreed that the boy was suffering with hydrophobia and he was sent to Flushing Hospital. His condition became rapidly worse and he died last night. It is said that four men and three other boys were bitten by the dog in addition to about a score of dogs.

MRS. WESTHALL ARRESTED.

Says She Is a Cousin of Mrs. Grover Cleveland-Accused of Theft.

YONEERS, N. Y., Oct. 19.-A woman who gave her name as Mrs. Margaret Folsom Westhall, and who says she is a cousin of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, is in the city prison here accused of grand larceny. She is 54 years old, and was arrested this morning on a warrant sworn to by Miss J. E. Cole, a milliner. She is said to have stolen a fur cape valued at $50, the property of Miss Cole. For several weeks Mrs. Westhall has been living at a boarding house or hotel at 92 Warburton avenue, this city, which is conducted by Messrs. Carroll & Kennedy. Miss Cole is staying at the same place.

On Monday Miss Cole missed a fur cape, and the so informed the managers. The managers felt certain that the theft had been made by some one in the house. Miss Cole accordingly procured a search warrant, and with a policeman the searched the apartments of all the guests, Mrs. Westhall's room being the last. When the policeman and Miss Cole entered Mrs. Westhall's room the first object they noticed was a large travelling trunk which had been strapped and locked.

It was necessary for the policemen to burst the ock, as the key could not be found, and after having removed a large quantity of clothing and knick-knacks they found the cape, it is said, carefully wrapped up at the bottom of the trunk. Mrs. Westhall, when arrested, was very indignant, and declared that some trick had been played on her. She was arraigned before City Judge Keilogg on a charge of grand larceny. She pleaded not guilty. An adjournment was had until evening in order that she might procure counsel, and she was held in $250 bail to appear at that time. She immediately gave the police the name of Edgar W. Folsom, General Secretary of the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip. 13. West 10:id street, New York city, and asked that he be requested to come to Yonkers. She called him her nephew. The police immediately complied with the request, but Mr. Folsom did not appear. To a reporter Mrs. Westhall said:

"I am in a terrible predicament. I did not take Miss Cole's cape and was totally ignorant of its presence in my trunk. I am confident that it is a piot of some of my many enemies to do me an injustice. Yes, it is true that I am a cousin of ex-President Cleveland's wife. My home was originally in Lakewood, N. J., where I lived for many years with my husband, who died there." before City Judge Kellogg on a

WILL ENTER SAN FRANCISCO.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Has Secured an Entrance Into That City.

Chairman Walker of the Atchison, Topeke and Santa Fé Railway Company announced yesterday the substantial completion of negotiations for the purchase of the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railroad, which will give the Atchison its long-desired entrance into San Francisco. The stock of the Valley Company has been deposited under an option contract in an amount carrying complete con-contract in an amount carrying complete control, and the transaction is now in shape for ratification by the Atchison stockholders at the approaching annual meeting.

The road thus acquired is completed and in successful operation from Bakersfield to Stockton, 235 miles, where it connects with river boats for Ban Francisco: the work of extending the line into San Francisco is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible, and will be completed next year. It has been intended to build a short connecting link between Bakersfield and the present line of the Atchison system at Mojave or some point in that visinity, but present indications are that this construction will not be necessary, as a trackage contract is in process of arrangement for the use of the line now existing between those politis.

This extension will afford to San Francisco and the San Josquin Valley another absolutely independent line of railroad to and from the East.

Crocker-Hill Wedding Postponed. Boston, Mass., Oct. 19.-The Crocker-Hill wedding, which was to have taken place in the Old South Church to-day, has been postponed indefinitely. Miss Anna Carruth Hill was to have been the bride. The bridegroom to be, Benjamin Clarks Crocker of Andover, a teacher at Phillips Academy, became insane one day last week. He is now in a sanitarium near Boston, and there seems to be little hope of his immediate recovery.

Kept Her Children in Unhealthy Quarter Although She Had Money. Jane Hannan, wife of Private Stephen F.

a peddler for the storing of coal and wood. The room has no windows and contained only a small stove and two mattresses. The while another one was chewing on a piece of raw cabbage. Col. Watson, agent of the Gerry society, who locked up the case, thought it one of extremeidestitution and took the mother and her children before Magistrate Simms in the Jefferson Market Police Court.

In court the woman had little or nothing to any for herself until it became clear to her that her children would be taken away from her, tember arily, at least. Then her tongue found the words that theretofore had been lacking.

"You have taken my husband away from me." she cried. "You have sent him to that war, and now he is lying sick with yellow fever. He was a right good husband, too, and I may get nothing but his poor body back. And now you take my children away from me. You had better take me, too, or I'll kill myself. I shall not go home without my little ones. I'll rather go into the river. Don't I have a house on the cast side that I can sell, and see here, what is this?"

The woman unbuttoned her dress and pulled out a purse stuffed with bills, each one of which had been rolled into a ball.

Magistrate Simms ordered her locked up over night. The children were sent to the Gerry society, to be dressed and cleaned.

It is thought that the woman has been brooding over the absence of her husband and the possibility of his death until her mind has become unbalanced. Her husband is said to have been a car inspector in the employ of the Central Hailway of New Jersey until he enlisted. Their home was in Weehawken, where the Hannan woman continued to live until a few weeks ago.
